Honorable Milliam E. Colby Director Central Intelligence Agency Mashington, D.C.

received a classified manual called "Where's What" that was prepared about ten years ago by a CIA security officer to assist other federal agencies in their search for information in the voluminous files maintained by governments, businesses, schools and other institutions. That study was compiled during 1965 and 1968 by a CIA employee holding a federal executive fellowship at the Brookings Institution, where classified work is prohibited.

CPYRGH

I would like for your to send me a copy of "Where's What."

It may prove to be quite valuable as my Subcommittee on Constitutional Rights builds upon the legacy of Senator Ervin by considering legislation concerning individual privacy.

I would greatly appreciate an early response to my request.
